   Yes.

   - Staff can create event and make any changes to it
   - Student can view the event list

3. Reflect on whether or not you met the project success criteria.

   Yes. This because when we do a test run, user are able to log into the system separately as a student and a staff. Hence, no data are mixed thus making it a success. Staff user are also able to create event and make changes to it, student user are also able to view the event list. Most importantly, both accounts are able to do minimal account management like changing password.

4. What were the main lessons your team learned from this project?

   Through this group project, I learnt how important it is to be able to work together. Without a proper teamwork, no tasks can be done within the time given. Even if the tasks managed to be done, it may not even be perfect. I also realized that it is important that we complete our tasks within the dateline that was given to us as not to slow the group process down. In conclusion, most importantly I learnt that communication within the group must be strong as to avoid conflicts that may arise during groupwork.

   Everyone can respect each other opinions and came up with something that can work for everyone

6. Describe one example of what went wrong on this project.

   Sudden project change request, thus the programmer need to alter some of the codes to suit the new change.

7. What will you do differently on the next project based on your experience working on this project?

   I will try focus more on programming part instead of the report details
